

Introduction to Social Forestry

OCN LEVEL 3

£600

30 September - 3 October 2014

Four-day residential course at the Centre for Alternative Technology

Small Woods

INTRODUCTION TO SOCIAL FORESTRY LEVEL 3

This course explores the use of woodlands to promote social and human wellbeing, and offers you the tools to start applying Social Forestry ideas in practice.

The course will give you an understanding of the theories and evidence underlying Social Forestry whilst gaining practical hands-on experience suitable for use with different client groups. It will be delivered within a woodland setting, using a range of participatory and reflective learning methods, to build on your existing skills and develop new ones.

The course will include:

- how woodlands promote human wellbeing
- managing group activities and individuals needs
- methods to observe changes in human wellbeing
- mindfulness in a woodland setting
- how to identify and manage different woodland types
- practical woodland management
- how to manage for woodland wellbeing
- setting up a woodland camp
- woodland crafts and activities

TO BOOK / FURTHER INFORMATION

Kate Hamilton (Coed Lleol)

katehamilton@smallwoods.org.uk

08454 560342

Subsidised places may be available to current Social Forestry practitioners by negotiation – please contact Kate if you wish to discuss this.

This project has been supported by the Sustainable Development Fund, a Welsh Government initiative in the Isle of Anglesey Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty

Small Woods registered charity number 1081874